

25 LAGUNAS CABERNET - SYRAH 2008

DEEPER ROOTS.

Centuries ago, in the Huanacache region of San Juan, there was a chain of 25 interconnected lagoons that were inhabited by the indigenous Huarpe tribes who traveled in small canoes called “Lagooners.” These lagoons have long since dried up, and in doing so changed the hard land into a renowned viticultural region.

Finca Rewen, the winery that produces 25 Lagunas, has an estate vineyard located at 2000 ft. elevation, near the foothills of the Andes Mountains. San Juan is an arid wine region, known for having intense sun, and is ideal for producing warm climate varieties. It is practically uninhabited with vast expanses of vineyards that take their irrigation from the crystal clean runoff of the nearby Andes.
